

Nadia Abu Sarah
Chief Financial Officer

Nadia Abu Sarah was named the Chief Financial Officer (CFO) of Aramex in August 2018.

As the company's CFO, Nadia is responsible for the overall financial strategy and direction at Aramex. She also guides the accounting, audit, treasury, corporate finance, tax, and investor relations, to pursue the company's growth strategy and meet its customers' and investors' expectations. Her career spans more than 25 years of varied experience in financial management, business leadership and corporate strategy.

She first joined Aramex in 1994 with the accounting and finance team and has since held several leadership positions through her journey with the company. Nadia is an active member of Aramex's Global Management Team and oversees the group's financials and the company's global expansion strategy. She played a key role throughout Aramex's public offering on the Dubai Financial Market (DFM).

Nadia holds a degree in Economics and Business Administration from the University of Jordan. She has also completed a number of executive development tracks in Audit and Finance, as well as Leadership Management programs from the University of Oxford.
